The Under Secretary (Mr. RALPH THOMSON), writing on his behalf, says; - "The contribution of Hongkong was not fixed at £40,000 because that sum was considered all that the Colony should contribute towards the up-keep of a garrison costing about £280,000, but because that contribution was considered to be all that the Colony of that time could be called upon to bear. As long as the Garrison at Hougkong costs so much more, than, the contribution it pays, there can be no claim to a reduction of that contribution on the ground of deficient numbers," Mr. Thomson goes on to show that when the contribution was fixed in 1868 at £20,000 it was intended to revise the amount in five years, and this was not done, al: though the Garrison was increased from 1,000 of all ranks to 1,574 of all ranks, and that while the revenue of the Colony Kursel, the new Governor of Eastern Siberia. was then about $567,615 it was estimated in 1890 at $2,184,948. Although Mr. Thomson fails utterly to give tion in Latin, divinity, and drawings. aux valid reason why the Garrison has not been increased, he is able to make out a pretty good case for the War Office about the armament for the fortifications. He says that out of a total of 92 guns only 10 are wanting to varying up to 23-3116 for the ordinary complete the armament of Hongkong, and that of these one 10-inch breach-loader was then (in July) awaiting shipment, another would be ready in August, and the remainder would be delivered in the Colony by the end of this year. They have certainly been a long time coming, but better late than never, and it must not be forgotten that there were some good reasons for the delay. One of these was that the despatch of 10-inch guns was an after thought, the first design being tofurnish nothing heavier than 9.2 inch guns. Then the Navy had to be re-armed as well as the various fortifications in the United Kingdom and at the different coaling stations, some of which no doubt are still in an attitude of expectancy. However, it is satisfactory that the very decided expression of opinion uttered some three years ago has resulted in the coaling stations being rendered there was. The Disprois, a French steamer, had of remaining in an unprotected condition a very similar experience, and one day as attack. The various colonies have made sacrifices on their part in order that this result might be achieved, and they have reason to be proud of the fact that the the utmost care and cleanliness are exercised in work was not all accomplished at the expense of the mother country. It is unques-

CEYLON AND CHINA TEA IN

The decline in the export of tea from China to Great Britain has been partially counterbalanced by an increase in the export to Russia, a circumstance from which the apologists for China's suicidal policy in regard to her principal article of trade have derived more consolation than is fairly warranted. It is only a question of time how soon China ten will be relegated to the same relative position in the Bussian market that it occupies in the English market. Russian buyers will find out sooner or later that they can get tea of equal quality at much cheaper prices. Ceylon planters are taking active steps to bring this fact prominently before the subjects of the Czar, and when they have succeeded Russian tea drinkers will not be slow to take advantage of it. present the Ceylon Planters' Association has a Commissioner in Russia, and an interesting letter from him giving particulars regarding his mission was recently published in the Ceylon papers. From St. Petersburg he writes that from all the information he has been able to collect since his arrival there is a great future before Ceylon tes in Russia, where it is already pretty well known and appreciated for its purity and cleanliness of manufacture. It is not the fact, he says, that the teas are found too strong and dark in infusion, as the Russians like a somewhat strong tea and do not at al object to a dark reddish colour, but what they do not like, at least in St. Petersburg. is the sweet raspberry taste given to Caylon teas by the water of the Neva. Whether auy alteration may take place in the popular taste in this respect or whether the objection can be removed by some alteration in the manufacture of the tea remains to be seen, but at all events all the dealers, both wholesale and retail, were desirous of seeing and testing the samples. These samples were to be distributed with a short circular printed in the English, German, French, and Russian languages. From St. Petersburg and Nijni Novgorod, to push Ceylon tea

QUARANTINE. In view of the precipitate action of Hongkong Government in declaring quarantine against Shanghai, the other day special interest attaches to the remarks nade by Bir Joseph FAYRBR, K.C.S.L. at the recent Sanitary Congress at Brighton. "The people on the Continent," he said, of the visitation of cholera, and it wonderful to see that notwithstanding the can be enforced by penalty. Under section experience they had had, they at once flew to antiquated, worn-out, and obsolete systems of quarantine and of cordons. The view enunciated by this distinguished authority is. however, not a novel one. Quarantine was definitely pronounced against by the English school of medicine some years ago; and on very good grounds. The question is one of vital interest to a great shipping like that of Hongkong, where the imposition of quarantine on versels arriving from neighbouring ports must have a proportionately whether the Board bad power by its by-laws more prejudicial effect on trade than in the case of places less dependent on their communications. If quarantine afforded real protection, then the law of self-preserv .tion would dictate its enforcement in the interests of the community at large, what ever the loss or inconvenience to the shipping which are said to be worse than crimes. It was suggested the amount might be paid out of the amount voted for laving drains this year and be transferred to the Kowloop well account next year, but I prefer myself instead of doing things in a roundabout way to do them as directly as possible. Under these circumstances I think it more suitable to ask Respecting the vote to make good the defalcations of a bailiff of the Supreme Court His Excellency said-Hon. members are aware that a bailiff connected with the Enpreme Court lately missporopriated a considerable sum of money, the sum now mentioned in this. legally speaking the Government are bound to refund this money or not but I have examined with care the papers connected with the case, and whether the Government is legally bound to cause the money to be repaid or not it certainly seems to me there is a kind of moral obligation on the Government to do so. Under these circumstances this vote has been asked for. I may add that the bailiff who misappropriated this amount is at the present moment at Macao. Steps have been taken to secure his extradition, but it appears he has committed some offence at Macao for which he is at the present time until that period expires the necessary steps cannot be taken to complete his extradition. I have, however, caused the Consul at Macao to be again written to on the subject and I hope as soon as the man's term of imprisonment comes to an end he will be extradit.
